BRAGG AND THE CONFEDERATES

It is quite refreshing in times like these when the Democratic party of the North is under the iron heel of the Confederates, to see a Bourbon Democrat from Wisconsin rise from his seat in the House of Representatives, and throw his sharpest lance at his Southern brethren. This is significant. It is an indication that some of the Democratic leaders of Wisconsin have enough of Southern airs, defiance, and dictation. General Bragg is in the Union army, and made a gallant officer. He fought in many a hotly contested engagement, and has not wholly forgotten the scenes and incidents of the great war when treason stalked forth to crush liberty and to perpetrate slavery. General Bragg has not forgotten the cause of that war, neither can he fail to properly place the terrible responsibility for the great loss of life and the incalculable destruction of property which that awful conflict brought about. When he now sees the very men who did the most to further secession and to divide the nation, are now trying to rule Congress and demand that the Government shall pay the losses the rebels sustained in doing the work of treason, he lays aside his Democratic mantle for a time and meets the Confederates in hot debate. He denounces their scheme to rob the public treasury and tells them some plain truths which put the Southern dogs in a rage. He gave them due notice that the Democratic party, which had lost the confidence of the people of the North, "can not carry you and your war claims." He told them in language which they could not misinterpret, that for one he was unwilling to permit the Confederates to draw money from the Treasury of the United States on the plea of loyalty, "when the people of the country felt they could not trust the treasury and interests of the Government with the Democratic party."

The General went a step further and spoke other words of wisdom. When the appalling war claims of the Confederates rose before him, he was driven to say that the business of the North was stagnated, that the depression was a burden on both capital and labor; and he did not forget to tell them in words so plain and bold that all could understand and hear, that these conditions of things in the North, are all consequences of the rebellion for which the South alone is responsible! He then said: "Yet the very men whose rebellion afflicted the Northern people with these burdens that are crushing them into the ground, have the impudence to come into Congress and ask for the North to assume the additional burden of paying them the cost of their wickedness."

Of course Bragg did not escape the fire which came from the Southern side of the House. The excitement, it is said, was the most intense which had been seen in Congress for a long time. Ellis, of Louisiana, defended the Confederates on the ground that "the Democracy of the South went into the rebellion on account of their interpretation of the teachings of the Northern Democracy." Then a general war of words was brought on. A dozen defiant Confederate brigadiers red-hot with rage sprang to their feet to reply; and those who did not get in a word found some satisfaction in cursing the Wisconsin member, and charged him with deserting the Democratic party and going over to the Republicans. It would be a good thing for the public Treasury if more Democrats could be charged with being renegades. When men like Bragg will stand up in the House of Representatives and defy the Confederates and refuse to vote for their war claims, there are hopeful signs that the South will not be the controlling spirit in our national affairs.

Matt Carpenter has a peculiar hold on the people of Milwaukee. They admire him as Boston once admired Webster. Four years ago, after the Senatorial struggle, he returned to his home a defeated man. But the people did not honor him the less. He was met at the depot by thousands of citizens, and hundreds of them drew him to his residence. He made a speech then which will not soon be forgotten. He told them he was gratified to a degree beyond his power to make it known, at the reception he received, for he was beaten in the contest and had no office to give away and therefore could not reward his friends. But this time he entered Milwaukee as a conqueror, and the ovation which followed was more enthusiastic in spirit and more imposing and brilliant in its make-up, than anything which had been seen in that city since the reception of Duke Alexis. Carpenter's speech was peculiarly a happy one, and those who opposed his administration, are now convinced that he is a man of too much honor to represent any other than the principles of the Republican party. We never lost faith in Matt Carpenter's honesty nor his Republicanism, and therefore in the late contest, when his Republican enemies assailed him, the Gazette was among the first to defend him.

A prominent suit against the Nebraska State Grange brought to light the fact that the Grange once adopted a resolution appointing a committee to urge the Legislature of that State to enact a law to regulate the price of country produce for a term of five years, and that no all farm produce a legal tender! To make one of the brightest financial theories of the age. Regulate the price of grain and potatoes by law, and then make them a full legal tender, and what good is gold and silver?

The little backbone of the Chicago Tribune has been broken. Because New York elected Conkling, Illinois Logan, and Wisconsin Carpenter—men whom the Tribune bitterly and unrelentingly opposed, it has lost all courage and has no faith in the DEFALCATIONS.

APPLETON, Wis., Jan. 25.—About a month ago W. H. Lanphear, a prominent Democrat, who has held the office of County Clerk for fourteen years suddenly left the city, and no one seems to know where he is. A committee consisting of A. H. Conkey, William Lamure and E. C. Dunn have been investigating his accounts, and have discovered a shortage of $4,000 and expect that it will reach $5,000. There is no chance for the county to recover a penny of the amount, for the fact has developed that aside from his first term he gave no bonds.

THE CHEYENNES.

The Command Back to Fort Robinson—An Investigation.

FORT ROBINSON, Neb., Jan. 24.—Captain Wessels' command arrived in camp this afternoon, bringing the dead bodies of Sergeant Taggart, and Privates Brown, Nelson, and Deboise, the latter having died on the road; also the wounded, and seven Cheyenne prisoners—three squaws and four children, of whom three are wounded. Of the nine captured, one buck and one squaw died before reaching here. They were carefully searched, and but two small knives were found. Captain Wessels' wound is very slight, and those of Sergeant Ambrose, Sergeant Reed, and Woman's Dress (Indian scout), dangerous. The board meets at the post to-morrow to make investigation into the whole affair. It is composed of Major Evans, of the Third Cavalry, and Lieutenant Schuyler, aide-de-camp to General Crook.

All the Indians now here are under strong guard, and will be taken to Fort Leavenworth.

Private Hautz, Company H, Third Cavalry, who was wounded the day after the outbreak, died in the hospital to-day.

HOT WHEAT.

It was a Burning Elevator at Toledo—The Loss and Insurance—A Blaze at Oshkosh.

OSHKOSH, Jan. 24.—About two o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the large and handsome two-story residence of Fred Faber, on Knapp street, outside the city limits and totally destroyed it. Owing to the scarcity of water no effort was made to extinguish the flames. Only a few trifling articles of the household effects were saved. The house was one of the finest in the county, having been valued at from $3000 to $3500. There was an insurance of $1500 in the Millville, of New Jersey. The furniture was uninsured. The origin of the fire is unknown.

THE PENSION BILL.

Its Consideration by the Cabinet—The Sum Required by Its Provisions.

WASHINGTON, January 24.—The Cabinet session to-day was long and interesting. The pension bill was the main thing considered. Commissioner Bentley has had a large force of clerks at work preparing a statement for the Cabinet, which was finished at 12 o'clock to-day, and sent to the White House in time for the meeting. By this statement it appears that $33,300,000 will be required to pay under this bill the pensioners who are now on the roll. How much more will be necessary is the subject of many estimates, which vary from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000, so that the bill will take from the Treasury from $5,000,000 to $70,000,000. Commissioner Bentley says the demand for blanks the past few days has been most extraordinary from Washington claim agents, and everything points to an outbreak of applications under the law.

Secretaries Sherman and Schurz, favor a veto, and other members of the Cabinet would be glad to see it, but the President does not feel justified in applying the veto power, though strongly urged so to do. He has until Tuesday to consider the matter, but will eventually sign the bill, distasteful as it is in many particulars. There is a good deal of ill feeling over the matter, as the drain on the treasury is of such gigantic proportions. Claim agents expect to find some way to evade the clause in the bill prohibiting the payment of a fee to any person for collecting these arrears. As Commissioner Bentley is very strict in his construction of the law regarding fees, it is probable that he will attempt to protect pensioners, and this clause of the bill should be well advertised. Bentley is the author of the law passed last session cutting down the fees of claim agents for collecting pensions from $25 to $10. There are about three hundred claim agents in this city alone. Many members of both Houses now regret having voted for the bill, asserting that they did so under misapprehension of the amount required to satisfy the claims. Senator Morrill made a public confession to this effect in the Senate to-day, claiming to have information that $90,000,000 would be required. The Southerners say that they have voted against the bill to the North, for the bill could have passed without the votes of Southern Democrats. In justification, they say that, and they voted otherwise, they would have been charged with being enemies of the Union soldiers; that since they have awakened however, to a realization of the amount required, they would sustain the President should he veto.

IN FLAMES.

Armour & Co.'s Great Packing-Houses in Flames This Morning—Vast Destruction of Property, and the Fire Still Raging.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A great conflagration began at Armour's new and immense packing house at the Union Stock Yards this morning about 1 o'clock, and was the occasion of the first alarm in the city at 1:45 and a second alarm a few minutes afterward. The fire broke out, according to a report received at the Bell telephone office, (at 1:23 a. m.), in the new building adjoining the packing house, and had spread rapidly under the influence of a fair breeze from the southwest, and soon communicated with the roof on the west side of the new packing house, and at 3 a. m., that large brick structure was on fire, and the reflection of the conflagration was plainly visible from the Tribune office.

Only two fire-engines were on the ground at 2 o'clock, and the wind having shifted around to the northwest, it seemed probable at last accounts that not only Armour's large establishments, but other similar ones would be destroyed.

The fire had become nearly exhausted when the last report reached the city, and it was feared that the engines which had been sent from the city would not be able to obtain a sufficiency of water to enable them to be of any service.

The box sounded by the alarm bells in the city was that located at the Stock Yards, No. 359, and it was feared the fire had spread to the yards, and some of its assistants had gone out to the scene of the fire to give such aid as they could. The roads leading out to the Yards are very bad at present, and the engines sent out must have had difficulty in reaching the place.

The new packing house of the Messrs. Armour and other buildings connected with it cover about a block of ground, and are mostly substantial brick structures. At the present writing (3:25 a. m.) no estimate can be given of the value of the property owned by Armour & Co., and in danger of destruction. All the buildings are situated in the center of the yards. There are other packing establishments and buildings in the immediate neighborhood of those on fire, and unless water can be supplied in great quantities, the immense building property at the Stock Yards is in great danger. The loss has already been very large, and a late report showed that there was danger of the fire reaching to the immense quantities of lard, pork, beef, &c., contained in the building.

The origin of the fire could not be ascertained up to 2:30 a. m. The great fire at the Stock Yards was still raging at 4:30 o'clock this morning, at which time reports by the Bell Telephone Company were received from Mr. Davis, of the large packing firm of Davis, Atkinson & Co., and Mr. Ricker. The former gentleman requested all the aid from the city that could be sent, and expressed fears that the large buildings owned by his firm would be destroyed.

nature added to the intensity of the fire. The water-supply was very meagre, and the scarcity of fire-hydrants rendered the chances of saving any of the buildings very slim.

The origin of the fire was not known as late as 4:30 a. m., but was first discovered in the new packing-house of Armour & Co.

The wind blew stiff from the northwest the last reports were sent in, and the fire was rapidly gaining headway in spite of all the efforts made to put it out. All the men at the yards and from all over the city, were on the ground doing all that could be done with the meagre facilities at hand.

No estimate can be given as yet of the loss, but it already amounts to several hundreds of thousands of dollars, and unless the fire is soon extinguished the damage will be the greatest in this vicinity since the great fire of 1873.

LATER.

Special to the Gazette.
CHICAGO, January 25.—The cooling department of Armour & Co.'s immense packing establishment at the Union Stock Yards was partially destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning. The loss will reach $50,000, while the insurance amount to $200,000. Twenty eight thousand tons of ice in the building, with the lard and meat below, was not damaged.

PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

A Glance at the Monthlies—The Bill of Fare for February—A Large Collection of Choice Articles.

The North American Review which has had an existence for nearly 61 years, and which has done more to educate the people than any other Review published in this country, is now being issued monthly by the Appletons. It is a great work, and always will be. It has a wide reputation and can never afford to lose it. The January number contains some solid and very interesting articles. The Fishery Award is treated by Senator Edmunds; Cities as Inlets in our Policy, by W. R. Martin; The Preservation of Forests, by Felix L. Oswald—an article which is worth the price of the Review for the month; The South, by Henry Waterson; Substance and Shadow in Finance, by George S. Boutwell; and several other articles. The price of the Review will be the same as heretofore—$5.00 a year. The monthly numbers are 50 cents.

THE ATLANTIC.

The many readers of the Atlantic will not be disappointed in the February number as they cut the leaves and turn over the well filled pages. Of course Mr. Howells' charming serial will engage the attention first, as it increases in interest from month to month, and there are other good stories for lovers of fiction; the legion of admirers of Bayard Taylor will be interested in Mr. Stoddard's reminiscences; and "The Career of a capitalist," is a most instructive and interesting paper, containing many good hints both to capitalists and employees. The political article is on "Limited Sovereignty in the United States." Mrs. Stowe contributes a satire on some of the absurd demands of fashion, and Mark Twain is very funny in "The Recent Great French Duet." Other articles of great interest, the always delightful "Contributors' Club," pleasant poems and a full chapter of "Recent Literature" make up an excellent number.

SCHIRNER.

The Mid-winter number of that popular magazine opens with a frontispiece portrait from the life of B. W. Emerson, accompanied by a beautifully illustrated paper by J. B. Sanborn on the "Homes and Haunts of Emerson." The promised adventures of "The Club at Play" occupy twenty-two pages; the pictures by the entire club and the description by W. M. Laffan and Edward Strahan, making a paper of great interest. The poet Stedman, contributes a half humorous, half-serious paper on "Aerial Navigation," containing practical suggestions towards the working out of the problem; and another illustrated article has for its subject the eminent English caricaturist, "John Leech," reproducing some of his best drawings.

ST. NICHOLAS.

Whatever promises the publishers of St. Nicholas make are sure to be redeemed, as the young people have learned long before this, and the February number is no exception. A new serial by Susan Coolidge, entitled "Eyebright" is commenced, Julian Hawthorne's charming fairy tale, "Rumpty Dugger's Tower," is continued, and there are seven short stories, all finely illustrated. Prof. D. S. Jordan, of our own State, writes "A Story of Stone," which is very curious, and famous violinists and the making of history of the violin are treated of in two graphic articles, "Little Nicholas and How He Became a Great Musician," and "About Violins." Another "Petterkin," story, pleasant poems, and some new games in the riddle box make up a very satisfactory number.

POTTER'S AMERICAN.

This finely illustrated magazine is always good. It is edited with a good deal of care, and is illustrated very skillfully. The February number is unusually interesting. Among the more prominent articles in this number are the Wonder Land of America; Knickerbocker Tales; The First Woman Pot of America; Bayard Taylor; The Bryant Brothers; Mendelssohn and his Music; and American Song Composers—the sketch this time is Geo. F. Root. The publishers are John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia.

THE LIBRARY MAGAZINE.

The first number of which has just appeared, is a new monthly of 128 or more pages filled with selections from the latest issues of the English and European periodicals of the highest class. In enters the same field as that in which Littel's Living Age and the Eclectic Magazine have been so prominent, but it is unique as far as price is concerned, the terms being only $1 per year. It presents a pleasing typographical appearance, while its matter is as choice and valuable as can be gained by a wise selection from the latest and best foreign magazines and reviews. To see so much that is excellent, offered for so little cost, is sure to put a cheerful smile on the face of a person of a liberal literary taste, and a dollar into the hands of the publishers. The American Book Exchange, 55 Beekman street, New York.

Love at First Sight.

From the San Francisco Chronicle, Jan. 16.

About four months ago Mrs. Bertha Heyduck, a lovely young German lady, having the misfortune to lose her husband, to whom she was tenderly attached, and to whom she had been married several years. They lived in St. Louis. Mr. Heyduck fell from a window, received fatal injuries, and died, leaving a fascinating widow in indigent circumstances. Mrs. Heyduck, overcome by the terrible loss she had sustained, sold her effects, thereby realizing sufficient means to pay the expenses of herself and child, the latter 5 years old, to this city, where her mother, brother, and step-father resided, hoping through their influence to procure remunerative employment to provide sustenance for herself and little one. But also for humaneness, Mr. Heyduck's widow greeted the grief-stricken widow and her fatherless child upon their arrival here. She was given to understand that she must depend exclusively upon her own exertions for a livelihood. Heart broken, without money and friends, she vainly sought employment without success. Last Saturday evening some difficulty occurred between Mrs. Heyduck and her mother, which so incensed the latter that she angrily turned the penniless widow and child into the street. For a moment the poor woman was completely overcome, but remembered an acquaintance, Mrs. Dwyer, 117 Bush street, to whom she had been introduced since her arrival in this city. She sought the hospitable home of the lady, and with trembling limbs attempted to mount the stairs leading to the home of the Dwyer family. Her strength, however, failed her, and with a cry of despair she sank upon the stairs insensible, and, with her child closely clasped to her bosom, fell to the bottom. The noise of her fall aroused the inmates, and they crowded into the hall where they discovered Mrs. Heyduck lying senseless at the foot of the stairs. It was a singular coincidence that just four months to a day previous to the evening Mrs. Heyduck met with this accident her husband lost his life in a similar manner.

The mother and child were immediately conveyed to an adjoining room, where, after the proper restoratives had been applied, the former recovered consciousness—the child having sustained no serious injury. Among those sympathetic persons present was J. W. Parsons, a friend of the Dwyers, a gentleman not only well known in this city, but also throughout the entire Pacific Coast. For years he has been in the service of various steamship companies of San Francisco, and is at present steward of the Tam O'Shanter, which plies between this port and Seattle. So impressed was he with the beauty of the fair widow, and so stirred by the tale of her sufferings and hardship that his sensitive heart was touched, and before the evening closed he laid his hand and fortune at her feet. Mrs. Heyduck accepted the generous offer of the chivalrous steward, and on Monday evening the two were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Mr. Wilkins, of the Episcopal church on Bolson street, the bride, in the absence of her relatives, being given away by Mrs. Dwyer. The bride is a brunette, about 23 years of age, refined in manner, and an accomplished musician.

The "Great Suspected Alleged de jure President," is the title by which Mr. Tilden should be known. It is a big title but a small salary.

"Fire-Proof"

It is said that a dealer in second-hand furniture can't buy anything so poor but that some one will pay a price for it, but a dealer on Michigan avenue found an old bedstead on his hands last fall which no one would take away, even as a gift. He left it out doors, calculating to saw it up when his fuel ran short, and it stood in the snow until yesterday. Early in the morning a man came along who offered $50.00 for it on certain conditions, which were readily granted, and he pulled it out of the snow, brushed it off and presently hung to it a sign reading: "One of those fire-proof bedsteads—only $3." In the course of an hour several men halted and looked the bedstead over in a curious way, and a little later a passing woman made a closer inspection.

"You warrant this fire-proof, do you?" she asked, as she finished her inspection. "I do," replied the man. "I'll give you leave to build a bonfire under it."

"You couldn't say 20 shillings, could you?" she inquired.

"What! Twenty shillings for a perfectly fire-proof bedstead, no, madam—$3 is far too cheap. Do you know what that bedstead would bring in Chicago?"

"Well, I want a fire-proof bedstead, and I'll take this one," she continued, as she opened her purse. "You fully warrant it, do you?"

"Madam, if this bedstead burns up your money shall be refunded," answered the man, and she was away perfectly satisfied, leaving directions for it to be sent.—Detroit Free Press.

How Bronco Pat Was Married.

Picnic (Nev.) Record.
"Bronco Pat" finding that he could not get married at Picnic, secured the services of a Mormon Bishop, by the name of Allen, who lived down in the valley, and proceeded to the Utah line, some five miles distant. On arriving at the place the good Bishop proceeded to business, and married the couple. When the marriage ceremony was being performed, Pat stood on the east side of the line, in the Territory of Utah, and the charming and blushing bride stood on the west side, in the State of Nevada, while Bishop Allen straddled the line, standing on both Utah and Nevada soil, and in this position the couple were united. This is probably the first couple ever united in the holy bonds of matrimony with the groom standing in a Territory and the bride in a State, while the old fellow who tied the knot stood in both.

A Dangerous Torpor.

Torpor or inactivity of the kidneys is seriously dangerous to those organs, since it is the precedent of diseases which destroy their substance and endanger life. This sluggishness may be overcome by stimulating them, not excessively, but moderately, an effect produced by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a general invigorant and alterative, possessing diuretic properties of no common order. The impetus which this admirable medicine gives to their excretive function counteracts any tendency to congestion which may exist in their tissues. Both they and their associate organs, the bladder, are invigorated as well as gently stimulated by the Bitters, which exerts a kindred influence upon the stomach, liver and bowels, and by strengthening the system, enables it to withstand malarial epidemics, to which when exposed it might otherwise succumb. jan25indw to shut the gate. With this young woman there was no person whatever except a soldier. But not at all intimidated by her situation, she showed herself sometimes in one place, sometimes in another, frequently changing her dress, in order to give some appearance of a garrison, and always finding opportunity. In short, the fault-finding troops once more departed without success. Thus the presence of mind of this young girl was the means of saving the fort.

A MURDERED CLERGYMAN.

Starvation the Result of Trying to "Preach Christ" at $400 a Year.

From the Montreal Witness.

The Mail of Wednesday refers to a case which, within the last few days, has stirred the Church of England circles in this city to the depths and rudely awakened them to the fact that, while they, in common with other religious sects, have been building churches in which to worship their God, at least one minister of spiritual food has actually died in their midst from starvation.

The case referred to is that of the Rev. W. F. Checkley, assistant minister of St. Paul's church, Bloor street, who died on Friday last, it was said of typhoid fever, but in reality from sheer want.

A few years ago he was engaged by the Bloor street congregation at a salary of $300, but the congregation found they could only pay half that amount, and on $150 per annum Mr. Checkley had to keep alive himself and his family of five or six children, including an adult son, who some time ago had his hands amputated, two children of a dead brother, and an invalid sister. Nothing was known of the extreme poverty of the family until Mr. Checkley's death, when it was ascertained that the household had actually been existing for two years on almost bread alone. But during that time they had not had in the house, and the taste of morsels of spiritual food, Mr. Checkley was off a plucky, noble disposition, and always had a joke for everybody. One day recently he was met by a brother clergyman, who remarked that he looked terribly cold, and asked where his overcoat was. Mr. Checkley, in a joking manner, replied that he had no overcoat, and in this way he would off any suspicion as to the real state of his family affairs. As soon as the real state of things became known the neighbors and the congregation of St. Paul's offered assistance in abundance, and probably a fund will now be raised for settlement on the bereaved widow and her family.

The case was referred to last Sunday from the pulpit in a couple of Episcopal churches. The Mail says it has heard of clergymen throwing up their charges in Toronto because they could not get their stipends paid, and trusting themselves in preference to the charities of the backwoods. At this present moment, it says, it knows of no pastors of fashionable congregations in the city whose salaries are heavily in arrears. Nearly all our churches are scrambling along, living from hand to mouth, steeped to the lips in debt, and very proud if they can in any fraction pay their own way. Mr. Checkley, who was fifty-four when he died, it should be added, spent nearly his whole life in the ministerial ranks in Ontario.

A Cheerful Republican Outlook.

Rochester Democrat (Rep.)

The Republican party is unusual thoroughly. It was never more compact or more harmonious than it is today. It is united upon principles. The Democratic party, on the contrary, is divided and disintegrated. It has made itself ridiculous by ill-considered investigations, and it is without significant rallying cries. The "fraud" issue, of which it is hoped to make much, has been turned against it by the discovery of the contemplated frauds of its own Generals. "Fraud" is it boomerang. Thus it is without prestige, and without resources, torn by dissension, and endeavoring vainly to manufacture issues. Certainly the Republican outlook is most encouraging, and if the inspiration that now animates, and the principles that now cohere, the party shall remain in their integrity, Republican supremacy for four years from 1880 is assured fully.

BRIEFLETS.

—A melting time.
—Clean up for church.
—Ruskin will be studied at the Round Table to-night.
—Another afternoon of rare sport with the flyers on the ice.
—The Council will have a meeting to-night if a quorum can be had.
—There was a thin house at the minstrels last night, and a still thinner show.
—At the "Saturday afternoon" to-day Mrs. F. C. Cook led off with a paper on Oliver Wendell Holmes.

—At Miss Battle's rooms next Monday night there will be a musical entertainment and readings to which all are invited.
—The Circuit Court opens work next Monday. The following week Judge Conger will sit on the bench at Jefferson.

—The revival meetings at the First Methodist church will be continued during the coming week. They are meeting with marked success.

—John Schucker sent to Washington and obtained a new photograph of Carl Schurz, from which he has had copies struck off and generously distributed among a few of his friends.

—At the Mutual Improvement Club meeting next Monday night, papers will be read by G. F. Selleck, Miss Phoebe Fish, Miss M. E. Smith, Miss Estella Griswold, and James Burgess.

—Miss Etta Pond will start for Chicago next Monday to attend the Hershey conservatory of music, where she will devote her time both to improving herself in instrumental as well as vocal music.

—The Temple of Honor increased their membership last night by initiating two fresh recruits, one of whom was a minister. There were several visitors from Beloit, among them being J. B. De Frie and Mr. Schwede, who gave stirring addresses.

—One of the steeds whose business it is to snatch No. 2's engine through the streets, was very sick last night, and it was feared that he was going where all good horses go—to the bonafide, but to-day he is convalescing, and it is now thought he will soon be himself again.

—It wasn't safe for the editors of the Beloit Graphic to show up in this city, after their late attempts to prove that the girls of this city have such big ears that they use blanket shawls for wads when they have the ear ache. In case they come here the girls will brand them as reprobates.

—There was some lively sliding on South First street to-day. Some of the boys of a larger growth coupled bobbeds together, posted a sentinel at Main street to warn the passing teams, and then "let her slip." Doctors and reporters waited in vain for fees and items, there being no broken bones or spilled gore though there were some narrow escapes.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 35 degrees above and at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 33 degrees above. Clear. One year ago to-day at corresponding hours the thermometer stood at 29 and 32 degrees above.

The indications are, colder northerly winds to westerly winds and partly cloudy weather, with rising barometer, and in the northern portions light snow.

A UNIQUE GIFT.

Dr. Whiting's son has received from his uncle, as a gift, a relic of the war of 1812, which will be prized by him more and more as the years glide by, owing to its connection with the family history. It is only a faded and moth eaten epaulet, but yet money would not buy it. It was worn by Dr. Whiting's father in the war of 1812, and in the Doctor's boyhood was gazed upon by him with youthful delight, and though he has not seen it before for forty years, yet it recalls vividly to him how its brilliancy, now faded by time, used to make his fingers tingle to get hold of it for a plaything. It is one of bright red broadcloth, with a fringe of twisted silk, and though sadly demoralized by old age, still retains enough of its departed glory, to indicate what its beauty was when in its prime. The uncle in sending this gift to his nephew writes a very appropriate letter, urging him to ever cherish the memento, and to be reminded by it, that as his great grandfather served in the revolutionary war, his grandfather in the war of 1812, and his father in the war of the rebellion, so he owes a debt of gratitude to his country, and in case of need should not shrink from any sacrifice which should be needful to protect its honor or preserve its peace. It is almost needless to say that the gift will be carefully preserved and much cherished.

"DAD" DILLON.

The fun-lovers of Janesville are looking forward to next Tuesday evening with great expectations, that evening being the one assigned for the appearance of John Dillon with the Wallace Combination at the Opera House. "My Awful Dad" has created uproars of laughter and cheers wherever it has been presented, and no Janesville audience needs to be told that Dillon, in and of himself, is supremely funny. If anybody has the blues or the dyspepsia they can find no better tonic than a dose of this comedy. The Cincinnati Enquirer says:

"My Awful Dad" was presented at the Grand Opera House last evening. It is extremely funny throughout, abounding in ridiculous situations, wit, humor and ludicrous scenes. And if you go there with the determination to keep a straight face and not laugh, you are sure to burst a blood vessel, for everybody must "scream right out loud."

We are reliably informed that some of the customers of Alex. Frothingham & Co., brokers, 12 Wall Street, New York, have made $300 within 30 days, from an investment of about $100. Frothingham & Co. are thoroughly reliable. Send for their Weekly Financial Report, sent free.
